state of economic and governmental disorder. Mayors and burgomasters in every city and town in the occupied district, except two, have been deported or arrested. Between 500 and 1,000 more Germans, including the town fathers of Bochum, have been taken into custody at bayonet point and many herded into trains for deportation.

French announcement was made in the Ruhr Sunday that black troops have been removed after 48 hours' service, to prevent unpleasant incidents. The blacks, consisting of a regiment of creoles from Martinique, temporarily relieved a body of white troops.

amounts of money on subscriptions to The Constitution between February 19 and March 10.

While the campaign for the original list of awards will go on without interruption and while votes to this end will be credited club members on all subscriptions sent in-votes will have nothing to do with deciding ownership of the two added prizes.

Money alone will count-and the two persons who turn in the greatest amounts between February 19 and March 10 will positively be awarded the extra prizes.

Now here's the point:

"Virgin Territory."

Reference to the hundreds of unrepresented towns and counties all over the state and the south has been made above. These towns and counties are totally untouched so far as securing subscriptions is concerned, and men and women who enroll to represent these sections have a decided advantage over club members already listed. The latter have in a measure covered the territory they represent, while new club members have an absolutely clear field for their activities.

In "virgin territory" the right kind of a club member can make one hour's work count for half a day in partially-covered territory. This means that a -idea opportunity is open to men and women who are willing to enroll and conduct a whirlwind campaign that will not slow down until the special offer expires on March 10.

If you're sleeping at the switch on this opportunity, rouse yourself. With the advantage you have, plenty of time is available for you to forge ahead of the list and cleave your way to one of the extra prizes by dint of determined activity.

Be sure to carefully study the club membership list published in this issue, and if your section is not actively and earnestly represented, rush in your nomination. Then get busy and stay busy.

Can Win Two Prizes.

To club members already listed, the Help-Yourself management Sunday pointed out the fact that it is now possible for a club member to win two of the handsome automobile prizes—one of the eight district awards and one of the special extra autos.

Keep your eyes open and don't let the great growth of your feet. It was the statement of the club management to old club members. "Don't let new club members win the special prizes. Keep up the pace. You have so far maintained, and make your mind to win two big prizes."

While the special campaign is in progress, rosters and bonus votes at the rate of 75,000 extra votes to every $25 in subscriptions sent in—and 3,000 bonus votes for every $1 above the $25 minimum—will be added to club members. These will count in the campaign for the original list of 40 big prizes, but will not count in the special prize campaign.

Immediate Entry.

The importance of immediate entry by new club members, however, was given chief emphasis by the club management Sunday.

"Come on in; the water's fine," was the statement made. "If you determine to win one of the special automobile prizes, you can't be too off. And if you win one of the special prizes, you'll keep right on after one of the 40 big original prizes."

Full details of the club features are given in an advertisement in this paper. Turn to it—read it—get nominated—get busy at once—keep busy.

SEEKS TRIUMPH
IN HARDING'S MOVE

ternational court is sound. In this connection, Mr. Hughes, however, should be reminded that when America was asked to submit nominations for the judgeships they were not made and the one man responsible was Charles E. Hughes, himself.

Would Vote "Yes."

"If I were a member of the senate I would at this session of congress vote to approve our membership in the court, even accepting Mr. Hughes' reservation that while we associated ourselves with the child of the league of nations, we claim no relationship with the parent."

The substance of the plan is accomplished and no harm will ensue from indulging Mr. Hughes' caprices. He was at one time as much opposed to the court as the league—the principle involved, but the auspices under which both were created. Perhaps he will find later virtues abiding in the parent, as he has discovered in the child.

ATTITUDE OF SENATORS.

Washington, February 25.—The attitude of senators on the administration's sudden request yesterday for authority for the United States to join the international court of justice, organized under the league of nations, failed to develop much more clearly today except for increased indications that action would go over until the December session of congress.

The first senatorial line-up on the question will come on Tuesday at the meeting of the foreign relations committee, called by Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, republican leader, for initial consideration of the plan presented by President Harding in transmitting to the senate the detailed explanation of the administration program by Secretary Hughes.

Pending the committee meeting, leaders of the "irreconcilable" and "reservationist" groups of republicans generally withheld open expressions of judgment. Democratic leaders, however, especially of the so-called "Wilson group," were in harmony in according approval.

The attitude of the "irreconcilable" faction, which played a powerful part in preventing ratification of the treaty of Versailles, appeared to be one of suspicion, and, in some instances, hostility, augured for a bitter opposition to the new proposal as to the league of nations.

Significance was seen in the failure of administration leaders, largely belonging to the "reservationist" group in the league fight, to come forward with immediate expressions of approval such as are given customarily to administration moves.

Indorse Move.

League proponents on the democratic side are coming forward with general indorsement of the aim sought by the administration, but even they are making reservations as to details.

The position of Senators Borah, of Idaho; Johnson, of California; Brandegee, of Connecticut; Moses, of New Hampshire, and McCormick, of Illinois, republican "irreconcilables," is expected to be developed openly by Tuesday. All are members of the foreign relations committee.

Although Senator Borah recently offered a resolution proposing an international court with a definite international code of laws and jurisdiction, he emphasized at that time that such a court should be distinct from any connection with the league of nations. This circumstance was regarded today as prophetic of Senator Borah's attitude toward the administration plan. Senator Johnson and Senator Reed, of Missouri, a democratic "irreconcilable," have been noted for their hostility to any dealings or connections, however remote, with the league.

Senator Moses said today that the administration plan appeared to involve "staying out and getting into the league at the same time."

With senatorial opinion in the formative stages and with general declarations that judgments would not be reached until after mature deliberation, predictions privately in all quarters were that it would be impossible within the week remaining before adjournment, for the senate even to initiate action on the administration request.

Negro Slayer Spirited Away To Avoid Mob

Albany White Man Shot to Death by Gainesville, Fla., Negro.

Gainesville, Fla., February 25.—Arthur Johnson, negro, who was arrested early today and charged with shooting to death H. C. Cross, 23, of Albany, Ga., a mechanic, employed by the Florida state road department's maintenance camp here, has been spirited away from the county jail here because of fear of mob violence. It was learned tonight. Officers, other than saying that he had been removed from the jail for safekeeping, refused to discuss the case.

Cross was shot to death while making a purchase in a store here last night. His negro assailant was believed to have been the one whom he brushed against on the street a short time before and who made the threat to "get him."

Johnson refused to talk. It was said that when arrested by the officers a .38 calibre pistol with two empty shells, was found in his possession. Cross was shot twice with similar size cartridges.

A crowd of about 75 men gathered in front of the jail following Johnson's arrest, but there was no trouble.

DEFENDS POLICE CHIEF
Pastor Praises Governor for Barring Lash in Prisons.

Defense of Chief James L. Beavers and praise of Governor Hardwick for his order abolishing the lash in Georgia prisons, were the chief features of the sermon last night of Dr. William J. DeBardeleben, at Payne Memorial Methodist church.

"The determination," said the pastor, "to get rid of Beavers does not come from any lack of efficiency on his part, but dates back to the time when the chief bravely refused to permit a continuation of the red light district."

The sermon delivered by Dr. DeBardeleben was on the subject, "Service Above Self," which was the result of a request that had been made of him and other Atlanta ministers, it was stated, by the Rotary club of the city.

FIREMEN BUSY SUNDAY Many Small Blazes Reported During Day.

A number of small blazes kept members of the fire department busy throughout Sunday.

The most serious was the destruction of the roofs of two houses at 29 and 31 Ridge avenue, respectively. The first is owned by W. P. Anderson and the latter by L. Greer, but was occupied by S. A. Bailey. Defective flue is believed to have been the cause of the blaze that was discovered on the roof of Mr. Anderson's house. Flying sparks set fire to the roof of Mr. Bailey's home.

The grocery store and residence of J. B. Bishop, 6 West Alexander street, was badly damaged by a blaze of undetermined origin. The stock of goods in the store was practically ruined by smoke and water. It was reported.

Other fires included the one in the soda fountain of the Crawford Soda company, located on the first floor of the Journal building. Approximately $100 worth of damage was done.

The blaze began in the balcony which is used as a storage room. Quick work by the firemen soon brought the flames under control. The cause is undetermined.

A quantity of clothing was lost in the fire which damaged the Capital Dry Cleaning company's plant, at 95 Capitol avenue. Total loss was estimated to be about $500.

Considerable damage was done to the home of Mrs. E. C. McDougal, 82 East Fifteenth street, by a blaze, caused by sparks from a chimney.

GUARDS' PROGRAM AT WGM TONIGHT

Atlanta's Oldest Military Organization Sponsors Late Program From WGM Monday.

Tonight's 9:30 to 10:30 broadcast will offer a musical program arranged and sponsored by the Gate City Guards, the oldest military organization in Atlanta, and will present a number of the city's best known and most accomplished artists.

Of particular interest is the announcement that Privates Bob Troy and Bill Lowe will share honors in announcing the program numbers. Both Mr. Troy and Mr. Lowe are quite well known to radio fans of this station, having been heard on programs sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. It has not yet been decided whether the two will be together or whether they will take turns before the microphone.

Among the array of talented and popular artists who will appear on the program will be Mrs. Roy Coleman, pianist; Mrs. Jane Allen, violinist; and Roy Coleman, tenor. Eugene Oberlander will open the program with a short talk on the history of the Gate City Guards and will tell fans why the organization proposes to sponsor one program each month at station WGM.

The Priceless Ingredient

In the city of Bagdad lived Hakeem, the wise man. Many people went to him for counsel, which he gave freely to all, asking nothing in return.

There came to him a young man who had spent much and gotten little, and said, "Tell me, Wise One, what shall I do to receive the most for that which I spend?"

Hakeem answered, "A thing that is bought or sold has no value unless it contains that which cannot be bought or sold. Go look for the priceless ingredient."

"But what is this priceless ingredient?" asked the young man. Spoke then the wise one, "My son, the priceless ingredient of every product in the market-place is the honor and integrity of him who makes it; consider his name before you buy."

Volpi's Stars Thrill Fans Who Listened Sunday Night For Station WGM's Program

Telegrams and Telephone Messages Received Attest to Enjoyableness of Late Offering.

Nora Allen, lyric soprano; Mrs. Irene Free, lyric soprano; Mrs. W. H. Wrigley, Jr., coloratura-soprano; Thomas Dendy, baritone; E. H. Merritt, tenor; Jimmy Finley, pianist; Signor Volpi, pianist—on WGM's Sunday night concert.

A more gifted or talented or popular group of radio stars has never been presented by any station than those who appeared on last night's 9:30 to 10:30 o'clock program at this station in one of the most brilliant musical offerings in the history of radio broadcasting in America.

Signor E. Volpi, the famous Atlanta teacher of voice and coach of opera, whose fame has spread throughout the nation, sponsored the wonderful program which presented an array of his most advanced and popular singers.

Nora Allen sang only one song, "Musetta's Waltz," from La Bohème—her favorite number—consenting to give the selection only after the office had received many requests for Miss Allen to sing, several of them from friends of the brilliant artist. The number was a fitting one to close the magnificent arrangement and her delightful voice was never heard to more advantage.

Mrs. Irene Free, charming and gifted young lyric soprano never sang quite so beautifully. Her pure, fresh voice, flexible and expressive, was strongly emphasized last night. She gave "Mifanay," "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses," "Rose-Marie of Normandy," and other widely loved songs in an unusually delightful and refreshing manner. Although Mrs. Free is a recent addition to Station WGM's staff of exclusive artists she has endeared herself to thousands of radio fans of the nation who enthusiastically welcome her contributions to programs from The Constitution's station.

Mrs. Wrigley, winsome and popular coloratura soprano, added to her popularity with her enjoyable contributions last night. Her voice is one of rare color and beauty and her songs are always pleasing to the most critical music lovers. Mrs. Wrigley gave "Mighty Lak a Rose," "Charmant Oiseau" and other beautiful numbers. Thomas Dendy, one of the south's leading baritones, was heard in his three best numbers, "The Toreador Song," "Posti's Goodbye," and "Prologue" from Pagliacci. This talented young singer is one of the nation's most popular radio stars and his admirers will be interested to know that he will be heard during the week in prologues at the Rialto theater.

Ed Merritt, tenor, is unusually popular with WGM fans. He has a voice of rare quality and range and his numbers were distinct and enjoyable features of the late Sunday offering.

Jimmy Finley, well-known baritone and pianist, interspersed the vocal numbers with a piano selection, giving a cycle of old southern melodies in his usual splendid manner.

Signor Volpi—following his usual custom—gave the piano accompaniments for the vocal numbers by his pupils. He is a pianist of exceptional qualifications, although best known as a teacher of voice. His accompaniments are highly appreciated by discriminating fans.

Germany Hears Radio Station in Newark, N. J.

Vocal and Instrumental Numbers Distinctly Heard, Is Report.

Lichterfelde, Germany, February 25. (By The Associated Press.)—Germany for the first time on Saturday morning listened to a program of music transmitted by radio from the United States. The experimental wireless station at Secaucus at 6 o'clock Saturday morning picked up the voice of Miss Edith Bennett singing in a department store in Newark, N. J.

Both the vocal and instrumental tones were perfectly audible. The transmission is regarded as remarkable since the broadcasting station operated on a 40-meter wave length. Eight high vacuum amplifier tubes were used in receiving, but only ordinary antennae eight meters high. Lichterfelde is a suburb of Berlin. Reports were received in New York Saturday that receiving stations in England and France and far inland cities of the United States heard Miss Bennett singing in Newark.

"Appreciation."

Radio Station WGM: Gentlemen:

Just a few words of thanks and appreciation for the many programs that have been enjoyed by our family from your station. I can safely say that your programs are one of the best that I have heard to date.

I am again thanking you for them and awaiting future ones with even greater interest. I am, respectively,
LLOYD S. CRILEY,
Brookview, N. Y.

SUNDAY PROGRAM VERY ENJOYABLE

Brilliant Artists Heard on Station WGM's 3:30 to 4:30 Program Sunday Afternoon.

A quintet of talented Atlanta artists gave Station WGM's Sunday afternoon program. It was one of the most enjoyable offerings in many months, and no doubt greatly appreciated by music lovers who regularly listen in for concerts from this station.

Mrs. Rose L. Matthews, dramatic soprano, and an idol of fans of Station WGM, sponsored the splendid arrangement which included Mrs. Charles Knox, lyric soprano; Miss Wanda Walton, violinist; and Mrs. Louise Howard Deagan and Miss Claire Harden, pianists. These brilliant artists blended their efforts beautifully in entertaining radio fans.

Mrs. Matthews, if it is possible for her to grow more popular with radio fans, augmented her popularity in her wonderful vocal numbers. She gave "The Rosary," "Sing Me to Sleep," "Time After Time," "Holy City," "A Dream" by Bartlett, and others. The last number, "A Dream," was repeated after several listeners had telephoned their thanks for the program, and insisted upon hearing the beautiful selection a second time.

Mrs. Knox was heard to unusual advantage in "By the Waters of the Minnetonka," "Ave Maria" by Gounod; "Musetta's Waltz Song," and other widely loved numbers. She has a voice of rare quality and richness and it was very beautiful in her contributions to the Sunday program.

Miss Wanda Walton, gifted young violinist, gave "Spanish Dance" as a solo. She displayed her unusual talent and training in the number.

Mrs. Deagan and Miss Harden divided honors at the piano. Both are pianists of much ability and training and their contributions were distinct features of the broadcast. They are well known to fans of this station, and are heartily welcomed on WGM programs.

Noted Artists Will Be Heard At Early Hour

Joseph Rosse, Tenor, Included in List of Offerings.

Joseph Rosse, widely-known concert tenor who is in Atlanta en route to New York from Florida, will be heard on station WGM's 3:30 to 4:30 o'clock program tonight. E. F. Rosse, his brother, will give the piano accompaniments. Other popular WGM stars will appear on the same program and the offering will be interesting and enjoyable.

The Rosse brothers are artists of exceptional ability and their contribution will be welcomed by fans of this station. Joseph Rosse has a voice of rare quality and strength and his brother is a pianist of unusual talent, who will give two piano solos.

In addition to the Rosse duo, other WGM stars will be heard in vocal and instrumental selections on the early offering.

"Concerts Are Fine."

Station WGM: I have heard your station many times this winter. The concerts are fine, clear and loud. Hoping to hear from your station many times in the future. I am,
HARVEY FROST,

ACTRESS NOT IN CAR AT TIME OF ACCIDENT

Driver Operating Machine Without Her Consent, Says Miss Bennett.

Miss Belle Bennett, Forsyth Playhouse star, named defendant in a suit for $15,000 damages filed Saturday by Roy J. Edge, for injuries said to have been received when struck by a car early in February.

She has not yet been filed with papers in the suit.

Miss Bennett's driver had taken the car without her knowledge or consent, she said. "I was attending a banquet given by the Famous Players-Lasky corporation in welcome to new officials of the company here. When we left the theater to attend the banquet, following the night performance, I instructed the driver to take my maid home and to return for me at 1 o'clock. He did not wait for the maid, but went on a ride without my knowledge."

Regarding the injuries sustained by Edge, Miss Bennett said she had been informed that the youth had not been seriously injured, and that he agreed at the trial in police court to settle his claim against my drive the sum of $20,000, which included the filling of this suit came as a great surprise to me.

At night Yaraab's great minstrel will appear at the school auditorium and at the same time a dance will be given at the Elks' hall.

DODGING BRICK IN FIGHT, YOUTH FRACTURES ARM

While dodging a brick thrown by one of three negroes with whom he was fighting single-handed, Sunday afternoon, Allen Wallace, 17, of 205 Woodward avenue, slipped and fell down an embankment, fracturing a bone in the right arm at the elbow. He was carried to Grady hospital.

Wallace told doctors at the hospital that his younger brother, Yonable, had been playing marbles with the negroes when a dispute arose. They attacked his brother and Allen rushed to his rescue. He at first tried to adjust the matter without violence, he stated, but when they attacked him with rocks he was forced to defend himself.

Another boy whose arm was fractured at the elbow joint Sunday afternoon was James Cobb, age 9, of 49 Mayson avenue. He fell off a barn in the rear of his home while playing with several children, landing on his left elbow.

Willows are found in the tropics and in the arctic.

HOME PRODUCTS IN CERAMIC ART AT THOMASVILLE

Thomasville, Ga., February 25.—(Special.)—The Magnolia Co-operative Pottery company is preparing to give an exhibit next month that will show something of what has been accomplished by the members in their work of modeling in clay. It is not generally known that in the vicinity of Thomasville there is some of the finest clay for this work to be found and the discovery of this clay led to the idea of forming a company to establish a pottery here. This pottery does not manufacture large articles for sale but the members of it have done some beautiful modeling in articles such as vases, bowls, small statuary and other articles. These are fired at the kiln of the pottery and those not familiar with the work are astonished to find how beautiful and perfect much of it is.

One of the members has had regular instruction in New York in the art of modeling and gives lessons in it to those who become members of the pottery. Mrs. W. S. Hoyt, of New York, who has a winter home here, was one of the original members of the pottery and is very enthusiastic over the work and the beauty of the clay to be found around here. Many of the members find the work so fascinating that they spend much time at it and quite a number of new ones have gone into the work of late.

Ancient device of French royalty was three tonds and from it evolved the fleur-de-lis.

Have You Reached the HEIGHT of Your EARNING POWER?

Many men now at the apex of their earning power never think about the time when their producing days will begin to fade.

There comes a time in the life of every salaried man when his earning power is on the wane, and he must face the facts! An old age in comfort, or a hopeless existence in pitiful want—depending upon whether or not he saved when his earning power was at its height.

There is only one way to accumulate wealth, and that is to save systematically. Wealth never just happens!

While your earning power is still at the apex put aside a surplus by saving every month a portion of your salary. There is no surer road to happiness.

Rediscount Rate Raised By Two of Reserve Banks

New York, February 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—Perhaps the most striking developments in business and finance during the past week was the raising of the rediscount rate by the Boston and New York Federal Reserve banks. Prior to last week's action these two, and that at San Francisco, were the only banks of the twelve regional institutions which did not have a 4-1/2 per cent rate. In lifting their charge for rediscounts half of one per cent to that figure, the two eastern banks left the San Francisco bank alone in maintaining a 4 per cent rate. The rise in the official figure had, as it turned out, little immediate effect on the speculative markets, but the change excited considerable interest in financial circles, where the significance of the move was a matter of wide discussion.

Opinion on the point was divergent. In some quarters the view was held that the reserve banks intended to serve notice that credit resources are not to be expended in speculative enterprises but are to be preserved for the usual commercial purposes. Others maintained that the two banks had taken their action in order to bring their rates into line with those in other districts and so prevent an undue demand on their resources. Still a third view was that the change was merely a belated step to rectify what some consider an abnormal condition; that is, a position in which official discount rates are below those prevailing in the open market instead of being above, as is usually the case with the rates of a central bank of rediscount.

In any event, it seems clear that the official action followed the market rather than anticipated.

Money rates having shown a distinctly firmer tendency for some months, as is quite natural when the concurrent improvement in business conditions is taken into consideration. Thus the best grades of commercial paper eligible for discount, at the reserve bank, which fell as low as 4 per cent at New York in 1922, lately have been ruling at 4 3/4 per cent. Only a few weeks ago the market was a 4 1/2 and 4 3/4 per cent affair, with the best names going at 4 1/2. Consequently the rise in the official rate followed a period of further tightening in the open market. It also brought a slight additional firming up in the latter, the commercial paper market moving to a 4 3/4 and 5 per cent range. The other money markets also made a slight response to the change.

As has been stated, the effect on speculative operations was slight. Some hesitation was apparent in the stock market during the first hour after the news was known, but the actions were relatively small and were soon wiped out.

Bonds gave ground somewhat, but cotton prices continued to soar. Many skeptical traders in this commodity appear to have abandoned their resistance to the upward movement of prices, being influenced by firmness in the southern spot markets, the strong statistical position and the impressive consumption figures. Be that as it may, operations for the rise held the ascendancy and the principal futures advanced to the 30-40 cent marks. Grain prices did not fare so well. May wheat receding to about $1.18, export demand remaining light.

Industrial news continued to be one of a highly favorable character. The steel industry is maintaining the best rate of activity that it can attain and the tendency is still toward a slight increase in operations. Demand continues strong and prices have risen further. The building industry apparently is going ahead at full speed with little attention to higher costs and the other leading consumers of steel continued to bid for deliveries.

EMPIRE COMPANY

BUSY RENOVATING
MANY MATTRESSES

Although established only one year, the Empire Mattress company, located at 698 Washington street, has built up a large patronage in every section of the city. As a renovator of mattresses the company has become known as one of the most reliable and dependable. Equipped with the very best of machinery and employing a number of expert workmen, its work in making over and repairing mattresses has drawn to it patrons from many quarters.

"Our Roofs are Our Proofs" and all work guaranteed satisfactory, is the slogan and the method under which the Elaborated Roofing company, at 222 Palmer building, this city, is building up a tremendous patronage throughout Georgia.

This company is just a branch—but a big one—of the original company located in Chicago. "Roofing" is the one word that covers all the operations of both the parent company and the Atlanta branch, which is under the management of L. E. Williams, one of the city's popular business men. The Atlanta branch spreads over all over Georgia, and while much of its work is done in this city and immediate section, yet it has scores of patrons, as satisfactory completed jobs will testify, over the state.

One of the jobs which stand out conspicuously as one of the best of its kind was the covering of all the main buildings at the Battle Hill sanitarium. Dozens upon dozens of other roofing contracts have been completed by the Atlanta branch in this city, many of them for some of the leading citizens of this territory.

As an evidence of the size and importance of the original Chicago company it need only be stated that it has put on more than 200,000 rods in the United States since it began business, not a great many years ago.

One of the features of the Atlanta branch is that all workmen and every one of them are expert roof men—who handle the local jobs are sent out from the Atlanta office. The work being thus done locally, it is no trouble to see that satisfaction is absolutely certain. Another special feature in connection with the work of this company is that every shingle which covers the old wooden shingle is a separate, individual shingle. This insures economy as well as service.

Another strong feature which recommends the roofs of the Elaborated Roofing company is the matter of insurance, as everyone knows the fire hazard on old wooden shingles is very great. Under the roofing of the Elaborated company insurance is reduced 20 to 40 per cent.

Now Mr. Williams reports that work is unusually good, but he adds that it is never so good that more cannot be taken on. The telephone in roofing can secure a visit from a representative.

"The Little Nugget"

THE GUMPS—ON THE RIGHT—YOU SEE THE PEARLY GATES

among the other actors in the drama confusion still reigned. Mr. Abney's ready tenor voice was issuing directions, each of which reached a dizzy height of futility than the last. Gossip was repeating over and over again the words, "Shall I telephone for the police?"—to which nobody appeared to pay the least attention. White came from the direction of the stable yard with a carriage lamp. The whole strength of the company gathered round the light.

"I suspect so, sir." "This is a very remarkable occurrence, White." "The man was actually in Master Ford's bedroom." "Indeed, sir?" A shrill voice spoke. I recognized it as that of Augustus Beckford. "Sir, please, sir, was it a burglar, sir?" "It was undoubtedly—" Mr. Abney was beginning, when the identity of the questioner dawned upon him, for the first time he realized that the drive was full of boys actively engaged in catching their deaths of cold. His all-friends-here-let-us-discuss-this-interesting-episode-fully manner changed. Never had I heard him speak so sharply to the boys. "What are you boys doing out of bed? Go back to bed instantly. Tied bed marks? I shall punish you most severely if you do not instantly—" A calm voice interrupted him. "Say."

The Little Nugget strolled easily into the circle of light. He was wearing a dressing gown, and in his hand was a smoldering cigarette, from which he proceeded, before continuing his remarks, to blow a cloud of smoke.

"Who is that?" cried Mr. Abney. "Who was that who spoke?" I had a curious sensation of having heard the voice before. "Here is one of the men, Mr. Abney." There was a profound sensation. They made for us in a body, boys and all, White leading with the lantern, and Mr. Abney spoke: "Mr. Burns! What—dear me!—what are you doing there?" "Perhaps Mr. Burns can give me some information as to where the man went, sir," suggested White. (Continued Tomorrow.)

WHEN A FELLER NEEDS A FRIEND

By Dunn

(Continued From Yesterday). To my amazement, he did so promptly. I was beginning to wonder whether I had not been too abrupt—he gave me a curious sensation of being a man of my own age—when he produced a silver case from his pocket and opened it. I saw that the cigarette in the fender was a stump.

I took the case from his hand and threw it on a table. For the first time he seemed really to notice my existence. "You've got a devil of a nerve!" he said. "And don't use bad language," I said. "Who are you?" he demanded. I introduced myself. "Oh, you're the assistant master, are you?" "One of them. And, in passing—it's a small technical point—you're supposed to call me 'sir' during those investigating little chats of ours."

"Call you what? Up an alley!" "I beg your pardon?" "Take a walk!" I gathered that he meant to convey that he had considered my proposition, but regretted his inability to entertain it.

He reached for the cigarette case. I pocketed it. "You make me tired!" he said. "The sensation's mutual," I said. "Do you think you had better around, stopping me doing things?" "You've defined my job exactly." "Guess again! I know all about this job. The hot air and nobody but him is allowed to fit the fellows. If you try it, you'll lose your job. And he isn't going to, because dad's paying double fees, and dad's still will lose me if there's any trouble."

"You're a funny kid," I said. He stiffened, outraged. His little eyes gleamed. "Say, it looks to me as if you needed making a head shorter. You're darned sight too fresh. Who do you think you are, anyway?" "I'm your guardian angel," I replied. "I'm the fellow who's going to take you in hand and make you a little ray of sunshine about the home. A boy who is going to have money needs to be taken in hand and taught sense while he's young."

"You talk a lot. What do you reckon you're going to do?" "What you seem to me to want most is exercise. I'll take you for a run every day. You won't know yourself at the end of a week." "Say, if you think you're going to get me to run—" "When I grab your little hand, and start running, you'll find you'll soon be running, too. Meanwhile, you had better go to bed, it's past your proper time."

The Little Nugget stared at me in benighted amazement. "Bed?" "Bed!" He seemed more amused than annoyed. "Say, what time do you think I usually go to bed?" "I know what time you go here—9 o'clock."

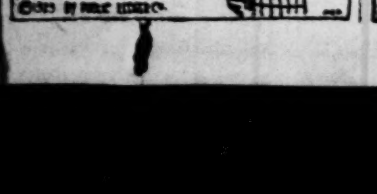

As if to support my words, the door opened at that moment, and Mrs. Attwell, the matron, entered. "I think it's time he came to bed, Mr. Burns." "Just what I was saying, Mrs. Attwell." "You're crazy," observed the Little Nugget. "Bed nothing!" Mrs. Attwell looked at me despairingly. "I never saw such a boy!"

The whole machinery of the school being held up by this legal infant, seemed to me a situation that called action.

ETIQUETTE and ENTERTAINING

By Mrs. Lydia Hoyt

When in my opening article I mentioned the fact that one never knew when he or she might be asked to sponsor a newborn child and therefore advised preparedness, I hardly realized how pertinent my words were. It was one of my own maids who made me see the wisdom of my advice by bringing her own weighty problem for me to solve. She told me that she was asked to sponsor a friend's first-born, and while she felt honored, as indeed she should, she was worried. "Just what are the duties of a godmother?" she asked me, and this is what I told her.

The duties of the godmother or godfather at the christening ceremony are not great, but they should not be dismissed lightly. When one is asked to sponsor a child, it is not only an honor, but a responsibility, and for this reason parents should ask only very intimate friends or relatives. Although in America the relationship between godparents and godchildren is not as close as it is in many European countries, where a figure next to that of the parents and grandparents, there is responsibility in it nevertheless.

For instance, while the parents are the natural sponsors of the child, if they should die the godparents are in duty bound to be the child's spiritual and moral guides, and they must see that the child is brought to confirmation at the proper time.

It is customary for the godparents to make gifts to the child on the day of baptism and afterward. On the occasion of the baptism the parents are usually silver cups, knife, fork and spoon or a porridge bowl. But if the godparents are wealthy, they often follow the more practical plan of depositing a sum of money in a bank or making an investment for the child.

In England it is the custom to insert a birth notice in the newspapers, but here notices are written to those in the family and outside who often should be interested. Sometimes, instead of writing notes, the mother sends her visiting card with the little card of the new arrival attached to it with a narrow white ribbon.

A child is usually christened between the age of six weeks and two months, but the parents may follow their own inclination in the matter. In the past it was considered bad form to have the ritual performed anywhere but in church unless illness or other good reasons prevented. But today home christenings are gaining in popularity.

For many reasons there are much better for the child as well as the mother. The child is not exposed to a cold in having its wraps removed, it is less likely for the mother, and there is less excitement for the baby, who is more likely to be exemplary in behavior instead of crying, as so many do in church. And so, unless it is absolutely forbidden by the church to which the baby's parents belong, the home christening is far better.

The Church Ceremony. The proper arrangements with the clergyman having been made for the day and hour, the ceremony usually takes place after the regular Sunday service. If it is to be a large affair it is held in week-day when the church is not otherwise occupied. The clergyman, sponsors and parents group themselves around the baptismal font while the ritual takes place and everyone else should sit in the front pews. A nurse usually carries the child to church, and while the ceremony is moving, we shall have to call that child "be" for convenience—he is held by the godmother from the beginning of the ceremony until the moment when the clergyman takes him for the baptism. After this is done the clergyman hands him back to the godmother, who holds him until the conclusion of the ceremony.

What Women Wear

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE.

Pictorial fabrics have been accepted in an amazing manner and a group of women in new frocks resembles "vanishing days" at an exhibition of paintings.

It is well that interior decorators insist that pictures should not be used on walls, that we must sweep photographs, landscapes and marines into the outer darkness of the garret. Why? Because women's clothes are moving pictures. One room can stand just about three new gowns at a time.

The ancient art of putting the life of a town on fabric was revived two years ago by artist weavers in France. Experts enjoyed the sight of these pictorial effects. The public paid little heed to them. They rarely got beyond shop windows.

This season a woman buys a pictorial cotton frock without questioning its fitness, its source or its history. She knows it is smart to turn herself into a moving picture of trees, animals and rivers. She sees nothing amusing in having a procession of horses walking around her knees. She does not object to baby elephants overturning up and down her spine. She barely glances at the Woolworth building, the Brooklyn bridge, Cleopatra's needle and the Metropolitan tower emphasizing her hips and banging against her ankles.

Silks really have these patterns, you know. America was not going to let France get out fabrics that showed the historical buildings of Paris. She stamped the eagle's wings, ran up her flag to catch the wind and turned the victrola needle to the Star.

As a rule a luncheon or a tea at the parents' house follows the ceremony whether it be at home or in church, and the clergyman—and sometimes his wife—as well as the sponsors should always be included in the invitations. However, be it luncheon or tea, one beverage should never be missing, and that is the caudle. The old-time caudle that used to take from one to two days to prepare is now a thing of the past, however, and today a hot cognac is served in its place—but whether cognac or old-fashioned caudle, it should be served in punch cups.

Many mothers also have a "white lady" christening cake, and this should be eaten as a sign that one accepts a friend, while the caudle is drunk to the child's health and happiness. (Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.)

THE HOUSEHOLD

Edited by Anne Rittenhouse.

SAVING GOOD-NIGHT.

Have the children in your house been taught to say good-night very early in the evening? Do they do so slouch when they are told to retire and never think of lingering for the courteous good-night? This is a good old custom in middle class families that is rapidly declining in this country of having servants habitually say good-night to the next day. Even the cook, who seldom went out of her domain in the daytime, stopped in the family living room long enough to say good-night to give and receive a "good-night."

In certain parts of the country one hears the expression, "good-night," used where, in most places, one would say, "good-evening." That is, good-night is a form of greeting used any time after dark. However, this is not the general use of the expression. It is a localism that proves sometimes a little confusing to those who are not used to it. It is a little disconcerting to have a hostess greet you when you call after dinner with a "good-night." You feel as if you had been dismissed before you had been welcomed.

According to popular use, "good-night" is the universal remark exchanged by persons even in the afternoon when they do not expect to see each other again till the next day. Thus persons associated with each other in business usually say good-night when leaving for the day, even when this parting takes place as early as 10 o'clock. #### China-Burning at Home.

(From Popular Mechanics Magazine.) Firing kilns for the burning of hand-painted china and glassware are now being manufactured in a size designed to be convenient for, and easily operated by amateurs. To those interested in this line of work, the new kiln offers an economical means of completing their own product in the home studio.

COLORED HAIR POWDER

Several letters have recently been asking directions for making the colored hair powder to use between shampoo times, on oily hair. As we have already said, the hair powder with ordinary white powder will take the superfluous oil from the hair and leave it dry and fluffy, but it will also leave it very dusty in appearance. An amount of brushing will bring back the gloss it had before, or that it should have after a shampoo. If a very coarse corn meal can be used it would be a greater improvement. I once suggested sifting coarse yellow corn meal through a cloth or shaking it up in a bag, so that a lot of the fine dust escaped. The coarse particles can be used, but even this is not wholly satisfactory.

The best thing is to make a shampoo powder of the color of your hair. To do this take a quantity of ordinary white laundry starch and, if your hair is very dark, melt it in cold coffee as strong and black as you can make it. Stir this about, pour off the liquid when it has settled and let the starch dry, finally crumbling it through linen or silk to get a powder that is free of lumps. The coffee smell can be eliminated by mixing in a bit of sachet powder. Powder for a lighter shade hair should be made with less strong coffee.

For a pale or blonde hair, use strong tea instead of coffee. When this sort of powder is brushed through the hair and brushed and shaken out it will leave it with that dusty appearance. The "gloss" can be restored by putting a big piece of absorbent cotton over the brush and giving the hair a final thorough going over with this. This used it would be a greater improvement.

HOW TO SAVE WHEN SHOPPING

By Ruth Leigh.

Author of "The Human Side of Retail Selling," "The A B C of Retailing," "Etc."

As fruit is one of the most nourishing foods of the average person's diet it should be eaten daily, not as a special "treat." One must, therefore, practice economy in buying it. Fresh fruit in season and dried fruits are the cheapest. It is economical to have canned fruit when it is canned or put up by oneself, or put up when fruit was low-priced, but the average commercial canned fruits are more expensive than fresh fruits.

With prices shifting constantly on fresh fruits there is really no standard. When you buy fresh fruit inquire the prices of the many kinds offered, note which is cheapest and then observe whether the cheaper kind is low-priced because it is abundant at that season of the year or because it is of inferior quality. It is well to state yourself posted regarding the different seasons for fruits coming from various localities, such as the season for Florida oranges, California oranges and so on.

If you should want apples for cooking, for example, and the only cheap apples are spotted and bruised, then it is just as well to buy dried apples or even canned apples. It is best to decide upon the fruit after you have studied market conditions rather than before.

Tomorrow's talk is about practical kitchen knife buying. (Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.)

Miss Mendes Is Honored.

Bainbridge, Ga., February 25.—The Martha Washington banquet tendered Miss Dora Mendes, of Savannah, the president of Business and Professional Women's Federated Clubs, and Miss Merrill of Thomasville, the national vice president for Georgia of the Business and Professional Women's Federated Clubs, on Thursday night by the local club, was a delightful success. The honor guest arrived at noon and was given a special luncheon at Nichols Haven, the club's camp.

The banquet was served at 8 o'clock in the Bon Air hotel. Covers were laid for 150 guests. The colonial theme was carried out in the decorations of little pink cherry blossoms that glistened from the favors of miniature cherry trees in tiny red, white and blue pots up to the great branches of the large potted cherry tree in the center of the long table. The programs were tied in the colonial ribbon and conditions were served in deep green baskets with clusters of large cherries tied on the handles and hatched were used for place cards. The Martha Washington costumes were effective and those in the knee breeches, stocks and ruffles with colonial hats and capes thrown jauntily back, were the hit of the procession as all marched into the dining room. The program:

America: address of welcome, Miss Botta, president of Bainbridge club; song, "Cherry Tree," sung by the ladies; dinner; song, "Memories," by Mrs. Rannie Butler; song, Georgia; introduction of speakers.

Miss Mendes, speaker strictly along practical lines of the work and its obligation to the national federation. Her splendid talk was well received and every word carried a wealth of thought and information to her very appreciative audience. Miss Merrill, a social guest of the occasion, delivered a lighter vein and was happily received. Mrs. Will Kraus of Washington, D. C., formerly of Bainbridge, spoke on the working girl, but that that social stigma was a thing of the past. After a solo, "Good-night, Little Girl, Good-night," by Mrs. "Goodnight," "Goodnight Ladies," sung in chorus, brought to a close the best and most informative meeting the club has ever held.

Interested Reader.—At 17 years of age with a height of five feet you are slightly overweight at 115 pounds. Possibly this condition, and a little sagging of your muscles, tends to the double chin appearance.

At your age nothing could be easier to correct. A tonic will build you up and lift all the muscles of the face so the sagging will disappear, since all of your muscles will have become firm.

In addition to this, massage all the muscles under the chin and around the throat, making strokes with the palm of the hand. Begin these strokes at the base of the throat and then stroke upward from the throat to the tip of the chin, always taking care to use pressure with palm as if you were ironing. Never make any downward strokes as the idea is to lift all muscles of the throat and chin.

Tomorrow—Answered Letters.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Pierpont Addresses Brunswick Rotarians At Birthday Meeting

Brunswick, Ga., February 25.—(Special.)—Porter G. Pierpont, of Savannah, district governor of the Rotary club of this district, was the principal speaker last night at a celebration of the eighteenth anniversary of the organization. It was Governor Pierpont's first visit to the Brunswick Rotarians.

A feature of the entertainment was receiving by radio a speech delivered by Raymond M. Havens, president of the Rotary International, broadcast by the Kansas City Star. A receiving set was installed for the purpose and the address of the president was heard very plainly.

Confessions of a Debutante

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY: I ran away from my fiancé, Jonathan Grey, rich and elderly, to the arms of Larry, a man who dances well. His wife.

Mrs. Larry shows me the folly of my action and I return home on the eve of my announcement party. I go on with the arrangement to Jonathan though in love with Larry.

My stranger, a penniless youth, who stayed to my coming out party, and tried to court me, but whose name I do not know. After a quarrel with Larry, my willful younger sister, over "Shirley," my friend, who has been with me and worn one of my gowns, I slip out for a walk in the park and see a figure at the corner of the street. It is Larry, who has been waiting for me. He disappears suddenly, however. At the theater with Jonathan later I see another man become too familiar and then become a week of misery, ending in a dinner with my father, whose wife appears on the scene.

INSTALMENT NO. 37. "Rescued."

I looked up quickly. "What's the trouble?" the voice repeated and I recognized it then as that of Mrs. Larry.

"What's the trouble?" I said, trying to reach her. "Yes—and if your companion will let me I'm going to take you home with me." She had slipped into the seat beside me.

"Do anything you want to!" Mrs. Mahon's shrill voice again. "If you knew what she's been doing for the past week I think you wouldn't want to be seen with her."

"I know her, know her better than do any of you. Mrs. Larry's words had the effect of being cut sharply from some cold, gleaming metal. "And I hardly think Mrs. Mahon, that you have the right to censure any one's morals."

Mrs. Mahon gasped. "If you'll stand aside a bit we'll leave you now."

Mrs. Larry had straightened my hat and gathered my gloves and purse. With her arm firmly around me I managed to stand and walk out past the waiters and the other tables.

Mrs. Larry said nothing as she bundled me into her machine. Her silence continued all of the way to her home where she put me to bed. It was early when I awakened. Not more than 8 o'clock. But my eyes had been open to the dim light only a short while when the door of my room opened noiselessly.

It was Mrs. Larry in her dressing gown. "Good morning," I said, and remembering the incidents of the evening before, "I'm sorry I've been such a nuisance to you. I'm spoiling the whole day for you."

"Soothing nothing!" she smiled as she turned on the light. "But I'm not going to talk to you like a Dutch uncle. What do you remember of it?" she asked.

"Every bit of it," I said, and I did. It seemed to have been photographed on my brain.

"Then I'm spared the painful duty of telling you about it," she laughed. "I know just about how you feel."

She went on, "You feel that you've been cheated a little by this—these plans of your mother's. And probably you have. It doesn't seem just the best thing to me. But you've made a promise. You've pledged yourself to Jonathan Grey and the best thing you can do for yourself—not considering anyone else—is to keep that promise to the very last letter."

"She was sneaking kindly but firmly. You've given your word. It can't do you any good now to run around and smudge your name just before you become a wife. Anyhow there's just one way to play the game, any game, and that is honesty."

"I'm not saying that Jonathan deserves it," she went on, "because he has probably a vista of women, standing and fallen which wouldn't be a compliment or a flattering thought to any wife. But it isn't a matter of him! It's yourself!"

"You can't be sentimental now—you've given up your right to be. You did that when you promised to marry for money."

"My dear," she was speaking slowly, gently, "sentimentality is from the girl in your present position is the cruelest thing in the world. It makes more tragedies than malice!"

TEAMS ENTER BASKETBALL TOURNEAU ARRIVING

Sandlot Players Turn Out to Be Greatest Asset

George Sisler, Ty Cobb, Willie Keeler, Frank Frisch Are Examples

Educated Players Seek Improvement and Have the Ability to Advance, Others Have the Determination.

BY JOHN J. McGRATH.

In an earlier chapter I made the statement that I advised and sincerely—that the college player who dropped into a ball player much more easily and readily than the boy brought up on the town lots with less advantage. I declared as between the two I would naturally prefer the college man because of his having had the benefit of mental training.

To illustrate the advantage of the college player, I will tell you that the boy with a trained mind usually tried to find his faults and correct them, while the sand lot player often tried to hide his. In his ignorance of the game he would not know that he was making a mistake, and he would not know how to correct it. I am still of that belief, but it is possible that some old-timers have shed an erroneous impression from that I said.

"Did you mean to say," an old friend writes, "that all the great players are college men?"

Of course, I didn't. I was merely stating a principle, the benefit of mental training. As a matter of fact, very few of our really great players have been college men. The only ones I can remember, though, at first the two statements may be confusing.

The fact that ball players have been a part of the first magnitude since the days of the early college players, and that the benefit of early college training merely emphasizes their greatness. By hard work and application they have overcome the handicap. Any one of them will tell you how much he missed those early advantages. Had he been a college player, he would have been a great star much quicker.

Few College Men.

Looking over my selections for the three great all-time players, I will be looking for very few of them have been college men. That is due partly to the fact that in the early days of baseball very few college men took to the game as a profession. Even in this day the college man usually went into baseball as a temporary means of livelihood, and he usually came out of it with a broken back. The college man usually came out of it with a broken back. The college man usually came out of it with a broken back.

George Sisler, for instance, is a college man. With his natural physical qualifications and his mental training he jumped to the front of the pack. He was a long spell of season, and he was a long spell of season. He was a long spell of season, and he was a long spell of season. He was a long spell of season, and he was a long spell of season.

BOBBY UNABLE TO MAKE TRIP

Cambridge, Mass., February 25.—Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, and Harvard, will not be a member of the American golf team which will play in the British amateur championship at Deal and later in defense of the Walker cup at Saint Andrews.

Harvard officials decided not to sanction Jones' trip as the date set for the St. Andrews event would prevent him from returning to Cambridge to take his final examinations. The shift in the date of the Walker cup play from before to after the amateur championship caused the exclusion of the Atlanta star from the team.

TIPS FOR GOLFERS

BY GEORGE O'NEIL

I GOT THIS STUPID FROM PRACTICING IN THE CELLAR

The player must not stoop too much, and yet he must stoop enough, if he would obtain rhythm. Not too much will throw you off as quickly as being too low. There is a happy medium which the player must find for himself, and this should be easy to do on the home practice court or in the winter school.

Adopted by the player must be maintained throughout the stroke. The old injunction about holding the head still in the shot has been thrown out of the window. The whole body in a fixed position. It would do no harm to speak of to move the head if you did not move the body. The head is a part of the body, and the head still solely because when you let the head go up or down during the stroke the body goes with it and that is a bad practice and one the player should rid himself of if he has been doing it. You might think that the great secret of golf is to keep the body from moving, but the ball is hit, or a moment after, and the body is in a position to raise up the body, both mentally and physically, before you are conscious of the actual exertion, and that's what does the damage.

Seeks Improvement.

Put an educated ballplayer and an ignorant one together as room-mates and you will find that the ignorant one will try to emulate the educated one. It never works the other way. In other words, it is human nature, to seek improvement.

We have overcome that. Today many a hotel welcomes a ball team. The answer is that when a young fellow gets in an environment where he discovers that people are regarding him as a gentleman he will soon learn to be a gentleman. He would not have the minds of those people disabused.

Will Play in Basketball Tourney

Boys' High Five Returns From Macon Tournament

G. I. A. A. Match Was Great Financial Success in Every Way—Atlanta Schools Stay Together.

BY ROY E. WHITE.

Boys' High, champions of the G. I. A. A., returned to Atlanta early Sunday morning and will devote the week to only light workouts as only one game of importance remains on the schedule. The Tech High and University teams also returned to Atlanta Sunday.

The G. I. A. A. tourney was an even greater success than last year and reports from the tourney authorities indicate that the Atlanta schools will receive a small amount for participation. Something over $1,800 was taken in during the four days of playing and the cost was near the $1,600 mark.

The officiating in the tourney was exceptionally good and not a hiss was sounded from the crowd during the playing. Both Parker, the Atlanta man, and Elyer, the Barnesville official, received the most cordial applause from this crowd. Each of the participating captains complimented the work of the officials.

Someone asked during the Lanier Boys' High game who that crowd of spectators were that were so enthusiastic for Boys' High. The Tech High cheer leader announced that it was an Atlanta delegation composed of boys from Tech High, Boys' High and University. The best of spirit prevailed between all of the Atlanta institutions during the tourney. There were something over 200 Atlanta supporters in Macon and many went via the well-known foot method until picked up by some autoist. Late Saturday night the gang began to walk towards Atlanta and have arrived by now.

Merced university students are to be praised for the treatment accorded the Atlanta supporters. Many of them slept in the Mercer dormitories and ate with the Mercer students. Saturday at lunch every visiting member of the G. I. A. A. was invited to Mercer and the lunch was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone.

Hard Task for Bob.

It must have been painful for Bob Gamble, captain of the Mercer basketball team and former Lanier High player, to have to pull the trigger that called a halt on the G. I. A. A. tourney with his alma mater team two points in the rear.

Soon after the game was over, the talk of Young Strubling being off the team was responsible for the defeat by Birmingham. The management of the Birmingham team is to be congratulated on getting this young man as he possesses everything that goes to make a good ballplayer. He has the speed, the strength, the ball, and the best throwing arms of any young player we have seen in this section and his good hitting and fielding had much to do with the World's Fair winning 7 out of 8 games played while he was with them.

Notes on Baseball

BY M. D. GLEASON.

Taxi Company Strong.

H. P. Mangum, manager of the Yellow Taxicab company's ball team, which played such good ball around Atlanta last season, stated that the Yellow Cabs were going to put out a team this year even stronger than the one they had last year. Mr. Mangum said the reason they could do this was because several good ball players had recently entered the service of his company and begun getting in shape already.

Signs With Almond Park.

Fred Havigorth announces that he has signed up Dick Endicott, W. S. Poole and Grady Bell for his Almond Park team. Dick Endicott is a former member of the Georgia national guard and has played good ball in several Texas towns. He is a splendid hitter and a good infielder, playing either first or second base. Poole has played good ball with Talladega and the best team in south Georgia.

Railroad Bonds Offered In Unusual Quantities

New York, February 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—New bond offerings last week totaled $43,000,000 as compared with $65,500,000 the week before. For the first time in several weeks the largest group total was registered by railroad securities which aggregated nearly $30,000,000. More than half of these represented equipment, trust certificates, reflecting the desire of the railroads to get their rolling stock into proper condition to handle the large volume of traffic. State and municipal issues totaling more than $16,000,000 was the next largest group in which there were 16 separate offerings. One of the features of this group was the offering of $8,000,000 4 per cent state of Illinois highway bonds which were sold at 99 3/4 to yield more than 4 per cent, the state conducting the sale by means of the open auction method.

Interested in Interest Rate. Considerable interest has been aroused concerning the interest rate that the next new government loan will command in view of the higher discount rates. It is generally believed, however, that no new short term financing will be done by the treasury department until about March 15 when approximately $350,000,000 of treasury certificates mature.

Financing by means of stock offerings continues heavy, the most popular of the recent issues being those of tobacco companies, nearly all of which have sold at a premium on the curb market.

In view of the interstate commerce commission's approval of an increase of $45,000,000 in the capital stock of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, which already has been approved by the stockholders with the understanding that it will be distributed as a stock dividend, and early declaration is expected.

Among the large number of new issues to be offered this week is a $1,000,000 Jersey city, N. J., 4 1/4 and 4 1/2 per cent tax revenue bonds dated February 1 and maturing August 1, 1925, priced so that the 4 1/2's will yield 4 1/2 per cent. An offering of $2,500,000 East Pennsylvania Electric company first mortgage and refunding lien 6 per cent gold bonds due 1933 priced at 97 to yield over 6 1/2 per cent will be made tomorrow. A new issue of $1,250,000 Ludlum Steel company first mortgage, 20 year sinking fund series "A" 7 per cent bonds also will be offered tomorrow at 99 and accrued interest to yield 7 1/2 per cent.

Railroad Offerings. Principal offerings last week were $13,447,000, 5 per cent, 32 year refunding mortgage gold bonds of the Illinois Central railroad offered at 99 to yield 5 1/2 per cent; $5,000,000 4 1/2 per cent six months to 14 year equipment trust certificates of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad offered to yield 5 1/2 per cent; $2,500,000 4 1/2 per cent six months to 15 year equipment trust certificates of the Western Pacific Railroad, offered at 99 to yield 5 1/2 per cent; $1,250,000 7 per cent first mortgage bonds of the Northern Pacific company, offered to yield 5 per cent; $1,000,000 4 1/4 per cent 20 year mortgage and collateral trust bonds of the Winnipeg Electric Railway company, offered at 94 to yield more than 6 1/2 per cent.

Cotton Trade Experiences One Week of Irregularity

New Orleans, La., February 25.—Pronounced irregularity featured the trading in cotton last week, as the result of the increased strength of old crop positions and the increased selling pressure against the new crop. On the close old crops were 67 to 83 points higher than the close of the preceding week while at the same time the new crops were 11 to 20 points under Old crop positions made new high levels for the season on three sessions of the week, but the new crops did not top existing high records for the season. March traded up to 29.61 at its best and closed at 29.33; October traded up to 25.84 and closed at 25.41. At the highest of the week the trading rose to 31 to 111 points over last week's close. Spots rose to new high levels for the season, 29.75 for the highest of the week. This week last year middling closed at 17.33 cents a pound.

The very strong demand for spots in all sections of the week was the main bullish feature of the week and this strong demand was met by limited offerings. Friday was first March notice day but no tenders appeared.

although notices for 700 bales were issued on the closing session, Gossip had it at the close of the week that various brokers had instructions to stop notices to the extent of 20,000 bales, all told. Spots were strengthened by the statistical statement of the week, the most prominent feature of which was the shrinkage of the visible supply of American cotton to 2,942,070 bales against 3,751,534 a year ago.

Weather conditions of the week were regarded as favorable in connection with the crop, taking the belt as a whole, but at the end of the week Texas was complaining of too much rain and of low temperatures as being against new crop preparations and as interfering with actual planting in the earliest sections of the state. This coming week the weather will probably affect the trading to a greater extent because of the large operations that have already been started in the October position. Cold and wet weather would probably stimulate the demand for new crop contracts while dry and mild weather would be likely to increase offerings.

"It's a Boy."

"It's a Boy," the hilarious comedy that will be presented all this week at the Forsyth Theater, tells a delightful love story, the sort of a romance that you want to know about if you're going to be married; have just been married; have longed for married life; or have been married for five to fifty years or figure that some day you may have a home of your own.

Polly Moran.

A distinct feature on the first half bill of the Lyric this week is the personal appearance of Charlie Chaplin's female rival, Polly Moran, noted Mack Sennett comedy star. This marks Miss Moran's initial personal appearance in Atlanta and she has a host of admirers who have enjoyed her comic antics as Sherrill Nell on the screen. Her vaudeville skill consists of a number of catchy songs and a side-splitting line of comedy chatter. "Pedestrianism" is the title of a comic novel offering by George N. Brown, the well-known champion walker. Bert and Hazel Skatelle have an original offering of dancing on skates, while Newell and Most offer a pleasing song and dance bit called "On the Lawn."

"Greenwich Villagers."

Opening the week at Loew's Grand Theater is a program containing many interesting features. The vaudeville end of the bill is headed by an offering of sterling quality "Greenwich Villagers," a sparkle of Bohemian, presented by the company of eight talented people, three men and five vivacious girls. Songs, dances and comedy are provided in generous portions during the twenty minutes the act is on.

Attorney Davis stated Sunday night that reports that the machine was moving at a rapid rate of speed and struck the trolley car were untrue. He declared that the automobile was moving north on Moreland at only a fair rate of speed. When the attempt to cross Ponce de Leon was made, he stated, the rapidly moving trolley struck the auto on the right side.

Mr. Dorsey stated that he had made a thorough investigation of the incident and evidence showed that the street car hit the machine instead of the machine running into the street car, as was reported.

Eufaula, Ala., February 25.—(Special.)—W. M. Weigel, a representative of the United States bureau of mines, spent Saturday in Eufaula to meet Central of Georgia railroad officials on business matters. Mr. Weigel has just returned from Clayton and Baker Hill, where he inspected the kaolin deposits of Barbour county after his investigation of the University of Alabama. He inspected a deposit in a railroad cut near Clayton and Baker Hill, where the railroad will extend the line to Baker Hill and other places where the deposit is found. It has been known for some time that large quantities of kaolin can be found in Barbour county.
